LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY MR HENRY LUCY.)

The Question of Ulster—Irish Members and the Premier—Business View of "Civil War"—A Downing-street Party—Sir John Tenniel.

WESTMINSTER, Feb. 15.

The stranger in the gallery who spent hours waiting for opportunity to reach his prized position must have been disappointed with the entertainment provided for him by the debate on Ulster.

In view of the votes of violent opposition, not to mention the members themselves, it would be reasonable to suppose there would be lively scenes on the Floor of the House. Nothing of the kind happened. Sir Edward Carson accusing Mr. Redmond of desire to endow the Parliament sitting at Dublin with the revenues of Ulster met with sharp retorts from the members, and Captain Crewe, who really got out of it where strong language was hurtful, finally alluded to His Majesty's Ministers as "the swinehounds who sit on the Treasury Bench."

The Speaker dropped sharply down upon him, and the gallant captain almost abjectly withdrew his offensive expression, except that he felt compelled to make up for it.

Carson had an aplomb of his own, though, of course, the cheering was confined to the Opposition members.

The attitude of the Irish Nationalists, members whilst the Premier was speaking, and their marked abstention from applause when he resumed his seat, created a profound impression.

Whilst the debate was in progress, a amendment for a committee of inquiry on the bill, a promise not liked by a numerous section of his following, Mr. Asquith studiously refrained from denouncing his method.

The general impression on the thronged audience that breathlessly followed his statement was that he had decided to go to the limit.

He had done so, and yesterday, she had given up the spring fashion of 1913 and the one just before, and now has become less stiff, frilled and more flowing.

She is worn where one never expected to see them: there is a more feminine touch about everything.

Bodices have not frilling and lace collars, and all open in front, showing a great deal of throat and chest beauty.

Even the button-holes and edges of cuffs and so on. This was worn over a pale pink chiffon blouse, whose collar turned over the fronts of the coat, half concealing the collar of embroidered muslin with which her tailor had sent the costume home.

The chiffon blouse, in its turn, opened over little chemise-like bodices, much pleated and through, were clusters of pink buds made in narrow ribbons or silk, and sewn down on some transparent lining. The buds were wadded, and then sewn into place. It was the prettiest finish I ever saw.

This sort of thing would be sweet in summer on a vest without white tulle or chiffon vest with this white material change after the ribbon and bows which have done duty so long in the adornment of our lingerie. Any little handwork touch is effective in the finishing of our clothes.

I daresay we shall see little posies of ribbon worn in the same way before long.

Whether in the threat of civil war Ulster is blushing or not is a question that divides public opinion, the vast majority of persons being inclined to answer in the negative.

The London Stock Exchange evidently has no doubt whatever.

The lurid pictures drawn in the Unionist press and displayed on the platform showing what will follow in Ulster upon the grant of Home Rule to Ireland would be悉悉 something of the kinship of Ulster, indeed, the popular element is still very strong on our part.

Sashes have come to stay, and for some years now, little bouquets of violet and forget-me-nots, a few pink buds made out of ribbons.

They are mounted on fine wires, and made up into delightful little posies for wearing in the front of a coat or fastened into your blouse at the waist.

Posies remain something of the kitnoo of old, indeed, the popular element is still very strong on our part.

LORD DENMAN.

SYDNEY'S TRIBUTE.

CITIZEN BANQUET.

MINISTRY CO-OPERATING.

A meeting convened for the purpose of making final arrangements on behalf of the citizens of Sydney for a banquet to be tendered on April 17 to the departing Governor-General, was held at the Town Hall yesterday.

The Lord Mayor, Alderman Richards, presided over a representative gathering, being announced that Lord Denman had accepted the invitation forwarded on behalf of the aldermen of Sydney and the citizens. The speeches delivered were characterised by enthusiasm.

Among those present were Sir Francis Suttor, M.L.C., Sir William McMillan, Sir William Manning, Mr. G. T. Hoyle (Assistant Treasurer), Mr. J. H. Bradstock, F.M.C., Mr. G. T. Hughes, M.L.C., Mr. David Storey, M.L.A., Mr. Henley, M.L.A., Mr. J. Russell French, Mr. H. V. Bradstock, Professor MacCallum, Dr. Talbot, Mr. W. Churchill, Tucker, Alderman Brunton, Mr. W. McElhone, Mr. J. Stinson, Mr. C. T. Burford, Mr. J. A. Frankland, Mr. Evans Jones, Alderman L. May Thompson, Alderman T. Kelly, and Mr. Lane Mullins.

A letter from the Premier, Mr. Holman, apologising for non-attendance, created some interest. He stated that the Government would extend its strong co-operation in making a great success of the farewell to Lord Denman, who had rendered such valuable service to the Commonwealth.

Mr. Frankland said that Sydney was one of the most important centres in the Empire, and he felt sure that the citizens of Sydney shared with him feelings of utmost loyalty to the Throne of England. (Applause.) The Governor-General was received with a great success at the dominions in the highest spirit of administration, and his departure should be signalled at some public function. He hoped that the citizens of Sydney would rise to the occasion as Lord Denman had shown, during the years he had been in the Commonwealth, a marked inclination to enter into the life of the community in every form.

Ex-Servicemen had been sympathetic to their comrades in the field, and where they left Australia they should have, as they had in many of his predecessors, a hearty friend who would not forget the position he had occupied here and the friendships he had made. He hoped for the credit of Sydney the banquet would be made thoroughly representative.

Mr. Hoyle (Assistant Treasurer) stated that the Government was sure that everything would be done to make the send-off to his Excellency the Governor-General a success in every possible way.

Mr. Frankland further said that the Governor-General was one to honour to him, representing his Majesty the King. They had all been deeply moved when he left Australia, and every mark of profound respect to the representatives of the Empire, who ever he might be, and in Lord Denman's case, the motion was carried.

Mr. Frankland said that the motion had been carried unanimously, and hoped that Lord Denman would be generally honoured.

Mr. Suttor (Assistant Treasurer) stated that the Government was sure that everything would be done to make the send-off to his Excellency the Governor-General a success in every possible way.

Mr. Frankland further said that the Governor-General was one to honour to him, representing his Majesty the King. Mr. Frankland said that the motion had been carried unanimously, and hoped that Lord Denman would be generally honoured.

Mr. Suttor (Assistant Treasurer) stated that the function was to be made, by the Government, a national one. (Applause.)

The motion was carried.

It was stated by the Mayor that the date was the only one that would suit Lord Denman.

Judge Backhouse moved that those present form themselves into a general committee to add to the number to carry out the object of the movement. He said he would have preferred to have marked Lord Denman's departure at the station, but as he was unable to do so, he had agreed to attend the function, though they might not be able to make the banquet a great success, and do Lord Denman the honour.

Sir Francis Suttor, M.L.C., expressed pleasure that the function was to be made, by the Government, a national one. (Applause.)

BABY'S FOOD SHOULD BE IN LIQUID FORM.

Baby's delicate little stomach cannot digest solids, and consequently can derive nothing but pain and irritation from them.

Baby's food is his mother's milk—Liquid. But if this is absent the safe alternative is GLAXO—which, although it comes to you in dry form, is transformed into a liquid food by the simple addition of hot water.

If mother's milk is deficient in quality or quantity, baby will drink other forms of GLAXO. The basic Baby above was, by doctor's orders, fed for the first three months on breast-milk and GLAXO alternately. Since then she has been reared entirely on GLAXO, and is now a healthy, strong, well-nourished, weighty and vitality much above the average.

GLAXO is pure milk, with extra cream and sugar added, modified by the GLAXO process, so that the nutritious milk-curd is broken down into minute soft particles easily digested by even a very weak baby.

GLAXO is recommended by doctors and used in Hospitals for Children throughout the World.

HAVE YOU USED PEANUT SOAP? If you have not, you have not done your duty by your skin and body. On the other hand, that is what most people do on the face, and on the skin generally—you HAVE used PEANUT, you can feel happy, for you will have done the best that possibly can be done for the skin's health and beauty. There can be no question on that point.

PEANUT has long been making beautiful complexion for nearly 20 years.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of four.)

ACTION ON A POLICY.

Edmunds v. Victoria Insurance Co.

Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. Davidson, instructed by Messrs. Salway and Primrose, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Shantz, K.C., and Mr. Marshall, instructed by Messrs. Marshall and Marks, for the defendants.

This was an action brought by Alfred Sanderson Edmunds, Elizabeth Anne Edmunds, and others, against the Victoria Insurance Company, Ltd., to recover the sum of £704 12s 1d in connection with a policy of insurance taken out by Edmunds Brothers, and carried on business as chemists and druggists at 51 Oxford Street, and also as manufacturers of perfumes, out of a policy of insurance with the defendant.

By consent, the Honor made an order, directing the parties to answer to the interrogatories on oath.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

A BURGLAR-PROOF DOOR.

E. K. and A. Bank, Ltd., v. Fowler.

Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. E. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Edwards and Cuthbertson, appeared on behalf of the English, Scottish, and Australian Bank, Ltd., and applied for an injunction, restraining Mr. Alfred James Fowler from letting, selling, or in any way parting with the possession of certain premises, situated by the name of "The Royal Arcade," and owned by the plaintiff bank, under an agreement to lease, dated May 2, 1913.

Mr. Deighton, and Mr. Weddell, instructed by Mr. Deighton and Gile, appeared for defendant.

Plaintiffs set out in their statement of claim that under the agreement, defendant agreed to erect the premises to the bank's satisfaction, but when defendant notified them that the building was completed, the amount now claimed was arrived at as the compensation to be allowed.

Mr. Haunt, Government Analyst, who had examined the soil on the property the day after the destruction of the property, said he noticed that the front part of the shop had been shelled, and glass ornaments had been shattered, portions of the woodwork and door charred by a fire.

On proceeding to the ground floor, instead of a burglar-proof door had been affixed to the strong room on the ground floor, and to all doors leading to the rooms above.

After being offered an opportunity to inspect the premises, the court directed that the defendant should be allowed to inspect the premises again.

ENTRANCE TO THE ROYAL ARCADE.

MINISTER CLAIMS RIGHT-OF-WAY.

The originating summons instituted by Mr. Shantz, and others, for a right-of-way, was filed, and the defendant, Mr. Alfred James Fowler, was ordered to appear on January 23, 1914, to show cause why the right-of-way should not be granted.

By consent, plaintiffs agreed to affix a permanent notice to the right-of-way, and to all doors leading to the rooms above.

BUILDING DISPUTE.

John Johnson.

Mr. Pickburn and Mr. J. Hughes, instructed by Mr. Leslie Gaquin, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. L. Armstrong and Mr. Perry, instructed by Mr. L. L. Morris, appeared for the defendant.

This was an action brought by William R. J. Cox against T. Johnston to recover the sum of £4500 12s claimed by him as damages for the demolition of a two-storyed house at Randwick for defendant.

His Honor made a decree that the defendant should be allowed to inspect the premises on the ground that it would be dangerous to allow interlopers another tenant who might injure himself, while having to share the same roof.

Knowledge of the structure of the building had led to suggestions of burglaries in the past.

After being offered an opportunity to inspect the premises again, the court directed that the defendant should be allowed to inspect the premises again.

Defendant stated that Butement was appointed arbitrator with his knowledge, or consent, and that he received a copy of such appointment, and further that plaintiff had no power to appoint an arbitrator.

IRELAND.

A GRAVE CRISIS.

COMMONS DEBATE.

SENSATIONAL REPORTS.

LONDON, March 18.—The House of Commons sat yesterday evening in anticipation of the debate on Mr. Bonar Law's motion of censure on the Government in regard to its refusal to formulate details of its proposals for the exclusion of Ulster.

Mr. A. J. Balfour, who had been hurriedly summoned from Cannes, entered the Chamber during the debate, and was cheered.

Mr. BONAR LAW'S BILL.

Mr. Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, in moving his motion, said that he was always hoping and believed that there was some way of reaching a final solution of the Irish problem, but that Mr. Churchill's Bradford speech, and Mr. Asquith's acquiescence, the way of peace must come from a source which he was at present unable to foresee. The situation was really more dangerous than ever.

Unlike Mr. Winston Churchill, he could imagine nothing worse than civil war. Personally, he would rather risk brave lives for political consideration.

It were only a question of disorder, he declared, "the army would and ought to obey, but if there were civil war soldiers were citizens like the rest of the people."

This party would absolutely reject the automatic exclusion of Ulster, and if the Ulster men continued their resistance the Unionists would be beaten.

The proposal of the Government showed that it did not feel justified in forcing Ulster to come in to-day; and if that were true, how could it justify forcing her to-morrow?

It was not true that the Opposition had demanded details in order to obtain a larger target, but Mr. Asquith had given a hint to introduce his suggestion in the form of a bill, and submit them to the country by a bill.

The proposal of the Government showed that it did not feel justified in forcing Ulster to come in to-day; and if that were true, how could it justify forcing her to-morrow?

Mr. Asquith had accused the Government of kinking behind the troops. "If the question is to be referred to the arbitration of the sword," he declared, "I am prepared to give the command for drawing the troops from Ireland, and the Unionists will fight the issue themselves."

MR. AUGUSTUS CHAMBERLAIN'S VIEWS.

Mr. Augustus Chamberlain said, although there was a certain amount of agreement in regard to separate treatment for Ulster, there was no peace along the path the Government had taken. He refused to believe that the Government would commit the crime of coercion.

The motion of censure was defeated by 346 votes to 282.

A SHAM AND A FRAUD.

"Throughout the debate, the tone has been high, and at times extremely inaccurate."

Shortly after Sir Edward Carson had concluded his speech he left the Chamber, with a view to returning to Belfast. As he disappeared the Unionists rose and cheered him loudly.

Some of the Unionists shouted to Mr. Devlin, "What don't you go to Belfast?" "I just came from there with the message that there has never been a greater sham and fraud than the talk of civil war!"

CHALLENGE TO A DUEL.

While Mr. Devlin was speaking Major Archer-Shee (Ulster) sent a note to Mr. Michael Flavin (Nationalist), which it is believed, amounted to a challenge to a duel.

The couple afterwards had a heated altercation in the lobby, but their friends intervened, and separated them.

EXCITEMENT IN BELFAST.

Sir Edward Carson, the Marquis of Londonderry, and others were hurriedly left for Belfast last night.

There are unconfirmed rumours that Sir Edward Carson and several of the others.

The news of Sir Edward Carson's hasty departure for Belfast has created a profound sensation in that city.

In Ulster there has been submitted to report for duty next week.

This notification has caused great excitement, in view of the threatened action against the volunteers, consisting of picked men, who are to be called up on Thursday night.

It is estimated that there are 300 men in Belfast ready to take the field at an hour's notice, and that 30,000 can be ready in six hours.

THE KING AND MR. ASQUITH.

Mr. Asquith had a prolonged interview with the King prior to the debate in the House of Commons last night, also with Lord Stamfordham (Private Secretary to the King), who has been present throughout recent debates on the Home Rule Bill.

TRANSLANTIC ECHO.

CANADIAN MINISTER CRITICISED.

Ottawa, March 19.—A debate took place in the Senate yesterday over the attendance of Mr. Frank Cochrane, Minister for Railways and Canals, at an anti-Homelaw meeting in England, when a presentation was made to Sir Edward Carson, and he had pronounced a complimentary scheme of the Labour policy of an Australian-owned, manned, and controlled navy against a Dreadnaught gift to the mother country.

Mr. Cochrane declared that the Canadian government was against Home Rule. The Canadians, he declared, were loyal, and they would be disengaged if one of their Ministers went to England and gave countenance to those who proposed to fight against the King.

Senator Lougheed, Honorary Minister, reported that Mr. Cochrane's loyalty was above question.

Senator Cooran declared that Mr. Cochrane had been guilty of treason, and the Government ought to dissociate itself from such action as he had taken.

Senator Lougheed retorted: "He is as loyal as any member of the Senate."

RAILWAY DISASTER.
THE INQUEST.
SPEED OF THE MAIL TRAIN.
(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTERS)

BOWRAL, Friday.
The inquest on the victims of the Exeter railway disaster was resumed before the District Coroner, Mr. Taylor, and a jury of six this morning.

Mr. Cartwright, lawyer for the Commissioners and Tramways; Mr. H. L. Lewis, the driver and fitter of the Temora mail van, and Mr. E. Pritchard Bassett for the night shift.

To Mr. Lewis: The fog was exceptionally bad. Driver Lewis said him and his son, also the driver and fitter of the Temora mail van, had been seeing whether the mail van gas mantles were intact, and also whether those in the rear of the broken cars were all right. He could not think that the speed was over six miles an hour. The carriages where the people were killed were at Liverpool station all the morning. Every train was expeditiously carried out. Lieutenant Stillring was destraining officer, and he formed up and marched cheerfully from the station to the camp. Then accepting the rain philosophically they set about making things as comfortable as was possible under the circumstances. There were no difficulties.

From a leaden sky the rain fell steadily.
